

Kevin Wallace

Kevin Wallace is serving his second term on the Bellevue City Council, having been first elected in 2009. He was deputy mayor in 2014 and 2015.

Kevin is council liaison to the Transportation Commission and represents Bellevue on the Eastside Transportation Partnership Steering Committee and the Puget Sound Regional Council's Transportation Policy Board.

While on the city's Light Rail Leadership Group, Kevin was instrumental in negotiating changes to the city land use code and an agreement with Sound Transit that cleared the path for quality light rail through Bellevue in a manner that protects our neighborhoods, roads and businesses from the noise and traffic impacts of the project.

In his professional life, Kevin is president and chief operating officer of Wallace Properties, a Bellevue-based commercial real estate company. The National Association of Industrial and Office Properties named him 2012 Developer of the Year for his development of a LEED-certified (environmentally friendly) community center in Snoqualmie and a LEED-certified multifamily mixed-use project in Seattle.

Kevin earned a law degree from Gonzaga University and a bachelor's degree in finance from Seattle University. A fifth-generation Bellevue resident, Kevin lives with his family in the Lakemont neighborhood. He and his wife Natalie have three sons, Gabe, Garrett and Zachary.
